

Why we came here

case study

BRIAN HINNIGAN

Hinnigan Fabrics

The move to the Scottish Borders was a really good one, both professionally and personally. Our business has been allowed to grow – it has taken us to another level that we wouldn't have realised where we had been based before. You really do get the best of both worlds in the Borders and we wouldn't want to be anywhere else.

The business premises are excellent and offer a fantastic location to bring customers to. The skills base can really take our product forward and we have the Scottish School of Textiles & Design on our doorstep. On a personal level, locating here offers a nice balance between a good education, more choice and running my business.
